THE MORE HONESTY A MAN HAS, THE LESS HE AFFECTS THE AIR OF A SAINT.—Lavater.

The
BETHEL OXFORD COUNTY CITIZEN

Volume LVII—Number 20 Established June 5, 1895 BETHEL, MAINE, THURSDAY, MAY 15, 1952 $2.50 A YEAR IN ADVANCE Single Copy—FIVE CENTS

Respect For Graves Asked

For the past two years, someone has stolen plants which were firmly planted on the graves in Riverside Cemetery.

We hate to realize we have a person in our town who would commit themselves for such a low down act.

We wonder if they are sleeping as peacefully as the ones from whose graves the flowers were stolen.

Let us hope it will not be done again this year!

IN AND ABOUT BETHEL

Frank Hunt, Jr., left May 6 from Portland for induction in the Army.

Mr and Mrs E E Bennett arrived home from Orange City, Fla., Tuesday.

The contract for construction of a Shell service station at "Bryant's lot" at Monument Square has been awarded by the architects, Bunker & Savage, with J U Wiesendanger, consulting engineer, Augusta, to Peachey Builders, Augusta. When completed it will be leased and operated by Pete Chapin, long a Shell dealer. The design will be Colonial "Beverly Farms" similar to the two stations recently built in Rumford by Ruth Carver Ames.

GUILD ENJOYS MUSICAL PROGRAM WEDNESDAY EVE

A delightful musical program was enjoyed by members of the Guild at a meeting Wednesday evening. The program included numbers by the following grammar school students: Dawne Christie, Camelia Whitman, Sandra Myers, Glenyce Berry, Richard Saunders, violin; Jack Greig, sax; Melvin Jodrey, trumpet; Carla Grover, piano; Roberta Bean, accordion.

Devotions were led by Mrs Frank Nary and a business meeting was then held at which plans were made for the annual Strawberry Festival on June 26.

Members were urged to come and bring their friends to hear Dr Angelo Bertocci this Monday evening, May 19. Dr Bertocci will talk on "Personal Religion."

The next Guild meeting will be a Pot Luck supper at Mrs Addison Saunders' camp at Songo Pond on May 28. Members will meet at the church and leave promptly at 6:30 to go to the camp. This will be the final Guild meeting of the year and new officers will be elected at that time.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs Florence Emery, Mrs Melitta Clunie, and Mrs Marguerite Scott.

MEMORIAL POPPY HONORS DEAD OF THREE WARS

"When you put on a memorial poppy on Poppy Day you will be paying individual tribute to those who have died for America in the three wars of the twentieth century," said Mrs James Lassiter, President of the Mundt-Allen Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary, as the Auxiliary continued its preparations for the annual observance of Poppy Day here May 24.

"Although the custom of wearing poppies in honor of the war dead sprang from World War I when the little red flowers grew in such profusion between the crosses, row on row, in the war cemeteries in Europe," explained Mrs Lassiter, "the flowers have come to symbolize sacrifice of life for America wherever it occurred. We wear the flowers for those who died in the Far Pacific in World War II, as well as those who gave their lives in the European theatre where the poppy is a native wild flower. And now we wear them, too, for the dead of the Korean conflict.

"When we think of the war dead, we naturally think of those who did not die but suffered disabling wounds or illnesses in defense of the country. Wearing poppies enables us to help these disabled veterans, and the children of veterans who also face privation and hardship because their fathers served. The contributions made on Poppy Day not only pay the disabled veterans who shape the little crepe paper flowers, but form the chief source of support for the vast rehabilitation and child welfare programs carried out continuously by the American Legion Auxiliary.

"Poppies were first worn to honor the nation's war dead in 1918, and the custom of contributing to the welfare of war's living victims in exchange for the flowers was begun the following year. This year we hope to see poppies over every heart as we honor the dead and aid the disabled on Poppy Day."

Dr E L Brown, Burton Newton, Earl Davis and Robert Keniston were fishing at Aziscoos Lake during the week end.

Cpl Earl J LaFlamme, who has been guest of Mr and Mrs Philip Daye for the past week, returned to his home in Waterford Conn., Sunday. He will enter Murphy's General Hospital in Waltham, Mass., Friday, May 16. Cpl LaFlamme served one year in Korea with Sgt Parker Daye. LaFlamme returned to the States with Parker last July. LaFlamme was in an automobile accident in October and received two broken arms. This accident happened while in the line of duty. He was in a hospital in New Jersey for several months before being transferred to Murphy's General Hospital for further treatment. This has been his first furlough since the accident happened. He was here for two weeks last summer with Parker and made many friends.

Power Wire Kills Crane Man Tuesday

Walter Littlehale of Magalloway was electrocuted and died instantly Tuesday afternoon when the log-loading crane for which he was hitching the tongs contacted a high tension wire. The accident occurred near Sturtevant Pond, where he was working for the Grafton Lumber Company of Bethel.

Last Friday Mr Littlehale was rendered unconscious for a short time and suffered hand burns in a similar accident.

FIRE DESTROYS HUTCHINSON HOUSE ON GROVER HILL

The house on the former Hutchinson property on Grover Hill belonging to Earlyn Crouse was burned Tuesday evening. The building was insured. The fire apparatus was delayed by muddy road en route, but the barn was saved.

MOTHER-DAUGHTER BANQUET HELD WEDNESDAY EVENING

The Eleanor Gordon Guild held a Mother and Daughter Banquet Wednesday evening at the Methodist Church. Preceding the supper games were enjoyed with Mrs Robert Keniston and Mrs Stanley Davis in charge. Prizes were won by Mrs Ernest Angevine, Mrs William Penner and Mrs Cheslie Saunders.

BETHEL U. of M. STUDENT HIGH RANKING FRESHMAN

Miss Laura M Wilson of Bethel is one of six of the highest ranking freshmen at the University of Maine who will be honored at the annual Honor Societies Banquet at the University on Wednesday, May 21. Also attending this banquet will be the principals of their former secondary schools.

Professor John B Crawford, president of Phi Kappa Phi, national scholastic honor society, said the six freshmen have been selected on the basis of being the highest ranking students in six groups of Maine secondary schools. All secondary schools in the state were arranged into six groups according to enrollment, and the top ranking University of Maine freshman in this group was selected for this honor.

The Maine professor said the purpose of the awards is "to recognize and encourage high quality work among the secondary schools of the state and among freshman students at the University."

The six students and their former secondary schools will each receive certificates.

SCHOOL OF AMERICAN STUDIES

Edison dreamed of illuminating the world with the "electric light." Marconi talked and dreamed of spanning all space with "wireless" communication. Mothers have dreamed dreams for the happiness of their children, and the children have built aircastles with their own dreams. Throughout history persons of low and high stations in life have had their dreams; and, in this great new world of freedom in which we are privileged to live, many of the dreams have come true.

The fulfillment of one of my most cherished dreams is beginning to take shape as a new building begins to rise on the Harding College campus. The steel and brick are on the ground. The building will be up rapidly. It will house Harding's new School of American Studies. The structure will be simple though modern. It is our plan to place one of the most important small groups of researchers ever assembled.

Impact on Minds

This new School of American Studies could prove to be even more important to human progress than Edison's development of the "electric light" and Marconi's "aircast" that brought on radio, home and television. Its impact will be felt on the minds of people to a degree of grace spiritual and intellectual confusion. One of the chief objectives of the faculty of this unique "Think Shop" school will be to build and coordinate textbook material picking American history, economics and government to their proper frame with relationship to the development of free institutions and the personal freedoms which have come to mean so much to our happiness.

While the responsibility will be entrusted in the hands of a small "Think Shop" of the first year and an equal number annually thereafter. Then each year beginning with the fourth year approximately 60 will graduate and each will enter the field of his choice with a great appreciation of basic American principles and an unusually clear understanding of why they are so important to the future welfare of the human race.

Material Not Available

Students coming to the new school will get three years of general education with emphasis on economics, history and government, and the fourth year each will enter his field for specialization—school administration, industrial administration, or government administration in each case actual field experience will be obtained along with classroom studies. Work preparing for governmental service will do considerable work in county courthouses and city halls; those choosing the educational profession will get acquainted first hand with school administrative problems and those planning to enter the business world will spend time in the actual operations of business and industries.

Dozens of retired people whom I have contacted during the past year have said to me: "We want to teach a better appreciation of our American way of life and a better understanding of what makes it tick, but adequate materials, textbooks and supplemental reading are not available." Representatives from some 40 high schools, colleges and universities have come to us during the past year asking materials of this nature.

School People Eager

And last week at the 10th Harding College Freedom Forum our annual seminar in American ideals for school and industry and community leaders, we had a number of public superintendents in attendance, all looking for suitable materials and techniques for individual emphasis which illustrate both the need for new materials and the eagerness of most school people to [illegible] Dr. Homer Rainey, our Forum director, was a high school principal and the director of secondary education for an eastern city.

They took home with them new bits of Harding College material. One was a factual book prepared and entitled "This Is Our Problem." They told of they were going to counter the propaganda which is daily being taught and preached in many school [illegible] a few days later, so that an educational "work shop" might be established for the school people of their area during the summer, to develop new American citizenship training courses for their school beginning next September. Our new School of American Studies is being established because of a nationwide recognition of such needs.

DALE CARNEGIE

Learn To Master Your Mind

EVERYWHERE HE LOOKED at one time R. Alan Pierce, Bronx, N.Y., saw listed in bold black print the symptoms of cancer. It was in every type of printed form, in the newspapers, magazines, on the movie screens. It wasn't very long before he began to feel some of these symptoms. As the days went by the nagging fears became frightful worries; every printed word on the malignant disease seemed to be aimed right at him. He was the one person out of every 10 that had cancer!

Carnegie

All of his daytime hours and his nights became consumed with that one horrible thought. He couldn't work, he couldn't sleep, and he couldn't think of anything else but the symptoms he was feeling that so obviously indicated cancer. He experienced the truth of the saying "there is no disease as real as an imaginary disease."

It reached a point where even his wife noticed his behavior, and it must have been pretty bad for her to notice it, because he tried desperately to keep it from her. He explained his feeling and his wife, he says, being highly intelligent, suggested the obvious course: to go to a reliable doctor and get a complete examination. Well, with just a few words that doctor ripped away all the fears and worries and nagging doubts that were making his life so miserable. All the doctor said after the examination was, "there is nothing wrong with you." Presto! He was suddenly one completely rejuvenated human being.

Here is the thought he wants to leave with you: The mind is a wonderful thing as your servant and it can perform miracles; but if you let it, it can make your life a veritable hell on earth. MASTER YOUR MIND OR IT WILL MASTER YOU.

Economic Highlights . . . . .

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

The struggle for the Republican presidential nomination has really become a horse race. To all practical purposes, General Eisenhower and Senator Taft are running neck and neck so far as actually pledged votes are concerned. Some eager partisans on both sides still claim that their man has a commanding lead and that the prize is practically in the bag, but this is the sort of wishful thinking that is ever a part of the great game of politics.

Eisenhower is strongest along and near the Atlantic seaboard—as his extremely impressive victory in Massachusetts demonstrated. Taft on the other hand puts the greatest weight in the mid-west and parts of the south. The Eisenhower camp was particularly elated by the fact that he attracted many Democratic voters in the Bay State Primary. This they argue, should be the clincher, on the grounds that no GOP candidate can win the presidency without cutting deep into the ranks of the Democrats and independent voters.

In any event, nothing has been decided. It is perfectly possible, for example, though not probable, that by convention time either Taft or Eisenhower could have enough delegates (603) to get the nomination on the first ballot. It is also perfectly possible that they would be so nearly equal strength as to make the nomination of either impossible, and so force the choice of someone else. This last possibility, however, now seems very unlikely.

One other candidate will have a sizable bloc of delegates when the convention convenes. That candidate is Governor Warren, with his 70 California and six Wisconsin votes. Three votes represent powerful trading material. Governor Warren is making an aggressive effort to capture Oregon's 18 delegates in the May 16 primary. The forecast is that he will get a substantial popular vote, but that Eisenhower will get the delegates.

There is one facet to this race that has some cool heads worried. Bitterness is beginning to appear among both Taft and Eisenhower supporters. There is a tendency to get down into the political mud and start slinging it. The cool heads believe that the respective campaigns for the nomination should be conducted on high political levels, as political levels go. First of all, they say, both General and Senator are obviously men of the highest character, sincerity and patriotism. You can disagree with their views, but you can hardly call them cheap run-of-the-mill politicians. Secondly, the argument runs, the highest possible degree of unity among anti-Administration forces will be needed if a GOP victory is to be won in November, and this unity could be seriously undermined by mud-slinging between Taft and Eisenhower backers. As for the two men personally, it certainly isn't to be expected that they will go in for dirty fighting.

The Democrats are in a pickle. The professionals within the party don't want Senator Kefauver, but he has swamped the field in the primaries. They like Governor Stevenson, an able man with a fine record, but he has shown no inclination to seek the nomination and he is not well known nationally. Administration men were strong for Kerr, but he has shown no ability to obtain widespread popular support.

Wilmington, N. C., Morning Star: "Obviously we cannot continue to support so large a portion of the world's population and meet its economic and military requirements as we have been doing these last few hysterical years without going broke ourselves."

The LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

For years now we been making laws about "rivers"—how to control 'em. We been pouring in dinero by the train full—but Old Man River, to show us up as up-starts and not knowing much about what we are up to, pays no heed, and floods as he sees fit—if not more so.

You take a river and put a dam across it—and if it rains sometime—you will catch yourself some rain water. And if it rains a whale of a lot—and if the dam is empty to start with—the dam will prevent so much water from flooding down stream. Putting diners into dams such as this will pay dividends, but we don't do it that way. We pass laws for dams—and donate big money—but the Smart Boys tell us we might as well put in a dreasee or 7 and make some power on the side. Congress, not knowing a kilowatt from the side of a barn, says that is "jake" with us—so to it, it says. But the trick to the get-up is that you can't make power unless the dam is full and the water can flow over and turn the water wheels.

So! with the dams full of water and the dynamos running full tilt and making kilowatts, what happens when the spring freshets come along. Yep, that's it, Old Man River don't even hesitate. We been putting it in the neck—and here—with our "smart Alec" dam antics.

Yours with the low down,
JO REBRA

THE ANNUAL SCOURGE

ACROSS the DESK

Ideas from other editors

THE SMALL COMMUNITY of Waterloo, Neb., has a problem—a serious problem which has been mentioned casually by a number of weekly newspapers in other sections of the country. George Woodward, Jr., editor of the Douglas County Gazette, has written a strong editorial about the problem. Here it is:

". . .'tis Sunday, and with the birds and the bees, and buds of the trees, the crazy, moronic, hot-rod drivers have burst into full bloom.

"The screech of tires on dry pavement, the continual blare of horns, the revved up motors, heralded the event long before the first robin—even before the first blade of grass was even thinking of turning green.

"Parents in the neighborhood dash to windows in alarm as noise of two-wheel corner turns comes through the house, hoping to find their little ones safe and sound—hoping that the hot-rod remained in the street instead of crashing into the play pen or sand box—hoping for Sunday to end without a fatality, but dreading the noonday recess and after-school games of car tag, bumper-to-bumper games and short-distance races that are to come on the morrow.

"What a hell of a way to live in communities of our own choosing. Perhaps putting up with this sort of nonsense goes with the many nice things that go with living in a small town, and this dangerous living isn't confined to any particular town or community—but this is present in every one of our small towns in rural Douglas county.

"Please, in heaven's name, before one of your children or one of my children shall become a victim of our own negligence or of our own cowardice, please, let's try and stop it.

"How? I don't know. Perhaps by becoming a community of stool pigeons, by filing individual complaints against individual offenders, we can at least make a start. The joint complaints might be filed by a group of citizens and given to the law enforcing agency in our villages.

"But, whatever we do, let's start it before it's too late . . . It must be done now!"

We Want Floyd

Home towns don't like it when neighboring communities begin to claim a local boy who has made good. E. W. Lauck, editor of the Page News and Courier, Luray, Va., had definite thoughts upon the subject recently. He wrote:

"As Jackie Gleason says, Harrisonburg is a "nice town," and apparently the citizens of Harrisonburg think it's a nice place to be from, if you know what we mean. At any rate, they continue to tell the world that Floyd Baker is their very own and hails from that city.

"Now this has our dander up. You see Floyd was born in Luray, went to school here, graduated here and played ball on the best high school team we ever had. That gives us a right to claim Floyd on our part, and, since he claims Luray on his part, it appears that the matter is settled.

"Harrisonburg can have its turkeys, its Madison College, and it can call itself the central gateway to the Nation Park but, by gum, we want Floyd Baker."

THIS WEEK in Washington

THE FUROR of divergent opinion over the President's seizure of the steel mills in the national interest continues to occupy congress with almost continual debate in one form or another. As a result, a log jam of important legislation is backing up. Attempts to slash specific appropriations with which to run the steel mills, to cut off all appropriations for this purpose, which failed, filing of impeachment resolutions by Congressman Robert Hale of Maine, one to have the military committee study whether the President should be impeached, another to declare seizure of the steel mills as unconstitutional were all handled by congress. This latter of course clearly invades the prerogatives of the court, which did declare the seizure unconstitutional.

Congressman George H. Bender, Ohio, has a bill for a special 11-member bipartisan committee to study impeachment possibilities. Congressman Howard Smith, Virginia, a bill to condemn the seizure, and Congressman Fred Coudert, Jr., New York, a joint resolution to prohibit use of federal funds to carry out the seizure order.

The rider adopted by the senate on a supplemental appropriation bill to prohibit use of funds in that particular bill was meaningless, since no funds involved could have been used anyway.

* * *

Senators Ferguson, Michigan, Knowland, California, Bridges, the minority leader, and Capehart, Indiana, took the lead in seeking to tie the president's hands on appropriations. They lost their amendment, however, which would have prevented use of any federal funds on a vote of 47 to 39, short of the necessary two-thirds majority to suspend the senate rules. Thirty-six Republicans, and 11 Democrats, all southern senators, joined the Ferguson contingent, while 28 Democrats opposed.

In the debate over constitutionality of the President's action, Senators Humphrey, Minnesota, McFarland, Arizona and Morse, Oregon, carried the brunt of the debate in support of the President's inherent power under the constitution to [illegible] Senator Morse, considered by many the best constitutional lawyer in the senate, maintains that the President does have inherent power, but that there is another question which the courts would also rule upon and that is as to whether such seizure was "reasonable" in the light of the national emergency.

According to constitutional lawyers and observers here, the government is operating under a state of national emergency with which Congress has concurred by passing the national defense act setting up allocations and price and wage controls.

Further, the Congress has set up by statute, the size of the army, the number of airplanes, the number of ships which must be purchased, appropriated billions of dollars to be spent for these purposes, and has delegated to the President as commander-in-chief power to carry out these statutes.

Many precedents have been set by former presidents.

The most recent and analagous one, being seizure of the North American Aviation plant at Inglewood, Cal., by President Roosevelt six months before Pearl Harbor, where on account of a strike, production was at a standstill. The then attorney General Robert Jackson justified the seizure as growing out of the "duty constitutionally and inherently resting upon the President to exert his civil and military as well as his moral authority to keep the defense efforts of the United States a going concern" as well as "to obtain supplies for which Congress has appropriated money and which it has diverted the President to obtain." Mr. Jackson is now the associate Justice of the Supreme Court.

PARENTS CAN HELP SAVE CHILDREN'S LIVES

Parents, many children are killed or injured each year by automobiles when youngsters dash into the street after a rolling ball or when being chased by a playmate. In their enthusiasm for the game they may forget the danger of the streets. Tell them that you will replace a ball lost in traffic, if they promise never to run into the street. Impress upon them the fact that the knowledge that they will keep this promise is worth much more to you than the price of a ball.

THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

Thursday, May 15

Fear thou not; for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee. (Isaiah 41:10.) Read II Thessalonians 3:1-5.

LIKE priceless jewels in a jewel box, we find the promises of God as we open His Word. Think of the countless ones of earth who have looked into the Bible and have claimed those jewels of promise as their own! They have found the gems to be genuine and flawless. Countless people have become rich beyond all measure through faith in those promises.

How many hours of agony have been lightened by God's promises! How many troubled ones have found comfort in them! The godly grow less dismayed as they lean upon the One who has promised to uphold them by His love and watchful care.

It would be a difficult world in which to live were it not for the promises of God, although so often we lack faith to depend upon them as we should. We go forth far more bravely and courageously when we are strengthened through an unwavering faith in God's promises to be with us and to uphold us. God means His rich promises for us.

Prayer

We thank Thee, our Father, for Thy words promising Thy love and watchful care. Help us at all times to put faith in Thee. Uphold us, keep us, and strengthen us for whatever trials may be ours this day. We ask it in Jesus' name. Amen.

Thought For The Day

God's promises prove God's watchful care.

MRS. JOHN B. VAIL

The shadow of death was again cast on the little community of North Newry in the passing of Mrs John Vail on Thursday, May eighth.

Ethel Andrews Vail was born at Mechanic Falls on October 10, 1876, the daughter of Freeland Q and Anna Sholes Andrews.

She attended the Norway public schools and later, in 1891, when the family moved to Auburn she was employed in the shoe shop and later as a dressmaker.

In 1917 she married John B Vail of Newry. Mr Vail served in the first World War and upon his discharge Mr and Mrs Vail came to Newry where they have since lived.

Mrs Vail had a vivacious personality with an enthusiasm for everything she did. Her home was her chief interest and besides busying herself with her household duties, she sewed for neighbors and friends.

Mrs Vail was a lover of nature and frequently she would write little poems as she looked upon some beautiful scene among the hills and mountains which shelter the Bear River Valley.

Her house plants and her flower garden were a joy not only to her but to friends whom she often remembered with these fruits of her labors. During the summer months one could be sure that the church was provided with flowers from Mrs Vail's garden.

"Aunt Ethel" as she was called was fond of young people and often her home was the scene of a happy gathering of boys and girls who were always sure of some good eats having been prepared for them.

Mrs Vail was interested in all activities of the town and added to the social life of the community often appearing on a program with an original humorous skit or an original sentimental poem.

Until recent years she was active in the Ladies Auxiliary of the American Legion. She has also been active in the Newry Farm Bureau and Grange of which she was a member at the time of her death.

Mrs Vail had been for many years the victim of an incurable physical ailment which she bore bravely and cheerfully. In times of illness she has been tenderly cared for by her devoted husband who has the sympathy of the entire community at this time.

The funeral service was held in the North Newry Church conducted by Rev David Hickland. Interment was in the North Newry cemetery.

Among those from out of town attending the service were: Fitz Vail, Maurice Vail, Rhinebeck, N Y; Mr and Mrs Guy Vail, son Lawrence; Mr and Mrs Lawrence Vail, Dedham, Mass; Mrs William Spinney, Mrs Edward York, Boston Mass; Mr and Mrs Clarence MacDonald, son David, Bangor; Mr and Mrs Frank Beausoliel, Mrs Harry Parsons, Rumford; Francis Vail, Auburn; Mr and Mrs Frank Parsons, Livermore; Mr and Mrs Richard Blake, South Paris; Mr and Mrs Martin Colby, Rumford Point; Mrs Lee Swan, Locke Mills; Mr and Mrs John Clark, Mrs Caroline Kastner, Portland; Richard Blake Jr.

Besides her husband she leaves a sister, Mrs Atha Richardson of Newry; two nieces, Mrs Helen Morton of Newry and Mrs Guy Vail of Dedham, Mass, and a nephew, Richard Blake of South Paris, besides several grandnieces and nephews.

From what I've seen of life
In earth and sea and sky
I know that there must be
A fairer, fuller world
Some bye and bye.
Almighty One, who in Thy wisdom made
These shifting scenes of light and shade,
Keep brave and clear my spirit eye,
That I may safely see Thy face
Some bye and bye"

VFW SEEKING MAINE'S OUTSTANDING CITIZEN

Maine's outstanding citizen is again being sought by the Department of Maine of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, in a state-wide search being conducted by the VFW throughout the state. It has been announced by John E Tucker of Bangor, Commander of the VFW Department of Maine.

Each year the Department of Maine honors the State of Maine citizen who has performed some outstanding deed or has been outstanding in what they have done to benefit those around them, either statewide or locally.

Last year the award went to a telephone operator from Brownville for her heroic action in remaining at her switchboard even though her life was threatened by flames which all but enveloped her office.

Anyone in the state can recommend a person to receive the award and Commander Tucker has urged that anyone in the state who believes their name of someone who is deserving of the award write to VFW Department Headquarters at 129 Union Street in Bangor and give the person's name and full particulars on what their candidate has done to receive the award.

The winner of the VFW Outstanding Citizen award will be a guest of the Department of Maine,

RICHARD HILL WILKINSON

Is Rivalry Necessary?

SOME believe that rivalry is an indispensable stimulus to the best individual effort. Too often this belief falls to the level of "Let the fittest survive" and results in conduct motivated by limitation and greed. It is based upon a selfish concept of material success, a concept opposed to the Christian teaching that man is the child of the Father, who blesses all equally, who "maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust" (Matthew 5:45).

The Gospels record an instance of strife among the disciples of Christ Jesus as to which should be accounted greatest. Jesus rebuked them with the words (Luke 22:26), "He that is greatest among you, let him be as the younger; and he that is chief, as he that doth serve." And he added, "I am among you as he that serveth." Never did the Master indicate any necessity for one to compete with another for either supply or advancement.

In the textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, writes (p. 491), "Divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need." One's real need is never to outrun, outsmart, or outwrestle someone else, but to reach up to that limitless Love from which all blessings flow.

In the universe of Spirit, the realm of reality, there is abundance of good for every one of God's children. In feeding the five thousand with five loaves and two fishes, Christ Jesus drew upon that abundance. He did not haggle in the market place, nor was the available quantity of bread depleted. His understanding of man's spiritual nature enabled him to meet the need from a wholly spiritual source.

It is the erroneous belief that man is a creature of flesh and blood which seems to separate him from his infinite, sustaining source. The mortal, material concept is not the image and likeness of God, because man is the perfect idea of eternal Mind. The acknowledgment of this perfection brings one into clearer understanding of the unlimited, unfailing power of omnipresent Being.

A ray of sunlight does not struggle with other rays for the right to shine. Each one individually reflects its source and has no existence separate from the sun. So man individually reflects his creator and has no other Life. The Father-Mother, who created all, never for an instant ceases to maintain His own creation.

We find our highest capabilities, not in competing with our fellow men, but in serving God. To express the divine qualities of goodness, intelligence, brotherly love, confidence, purity, holiness is our true purpose; and the fulfillment of that purpose is the only accurate measure of success. Yet divine Principle so operates that spiritual attainment is demonstrated in present harmony and satisfaction. Basing success on mere human superiority or material wealth places it on a temporal plane, subject to the vagaries of error. That which is obtained by wrestling from another may in turn be lost. What is gained by receptivity to God's outpouring is permanent and secure.... —The Christian Science Monitor.

Regardless of whether or not the other fellows does, dim YOUR lights for him. If you blind him, you may cause an accident . . and YOU may be in it!

THIS DANCE, save for the fact that there were a number of new men present due to the annual mid-winter vacation at the university, was not unlike a dozen others Amalia had attended at the country club. If anything, she was more popular. Men cut in on her before she had taken 10 steps with each new partner. She was used to it. She loved it. She had acquired a poise that kept men wondering, encouraged them, yet was impartial.

As the evening wore on she began to notice the good looking blond who danced continuously with Beulah Wyman. Not that she begrudged Beulah the attentions of a good-looking man. The poor thing deserved it. But it struck Amalia as queer that the blond hadn't cut in on her. At first he had been merely one of a dozen youths whom she didn't know. By 11 o'clock he stood out from the rest. He hadn't asked her to dance, he hadn't sought an introduction, he hadn't even looked at her in that way to which Amalia was so used.

AMALIA FOUND HERSELF being annoyed. She was accustomed to having strange young men seek her out. When Vinton Coburn swung her away in the next dance she said: "Who's your good-looking boy friend, Vint?" She had seen the blond talking to Vint.

Vint looked down at her. "Which one?" he asked and just then the blond slid by with Beulah Wyman and she nodded toward him. "Oh, him! Why that's Winthrop Akers. A nice boy. He's down with Jim Oliver for the week-end. Met him?"

"Who?" Amalia evaded. "Jim or Mr. Akers?" She had seen Dave Turner coming toward them and timed her answer. Dave cut in in time to spare her the explanation Vint's expression was demanding.

When 12 o'clock came and there was a pause for supper, Amalia's annoyance had reached a point of resentment. Winthrop Akers was paying her less attention than ever. If that were possible. She wanted to meet him. She was determined to contrive it somehow. She wanted him to know that she was the most popular girl present.

WHEN THEY RETURNED to the ballroom at 1 o'clock Amalia got Tom Burden one side and suggested a Paul Jones. Tom thought the idea a good one and immediately put it into execution. But they swung to the music three times before Amalia's efforts to negotiate being at the right place at the right time were successful.

She discovered that Winthrop Akers danced divinely. She expected him to say something, but he didn't. She was afraid the music would stop before he decided to talk. Abruptly he stopped dancing and suggested that they sit out a few while Amalia was surprised. She was more surprised at her own acquiescence. Certainly things weren't working out as she had planned.

"I'm Winthrop Akers," he explained. "We haven't been introduced, have we?"

It was a blow to her pride that he didn't know who she was. She knew a quick anger, but smothered it. "No," she said. "I'm Amalia Yeaton." And waited. But the name had no effect on him. He said:

"Well, what's in a name, anyhow? I'm fed up with this dance. Let's drive somewhere."

AMALIA WAS OVERWHELMED. He was so casual about it. Didn't he know that every man there was dying to take her home? Vint Coburn came up and asked her to dance, but she shook her head. Vint stared at her queerly and stared at Winthrop Akers. She expected him to park, and was determined to resent any advances he might make. But she didn't get the chance. They had hot chocolate at a country roadhouse and then drove home. Winthrop didn't try to kiss her good night. Amalia felt that the evening wasn't entirely victorious.

The next day Winthrop called up and asked her to have dinner with him. She agreed. He arrived wearing glasses. The glasses didn't improve his looks any, but she forgot them before the evening had begun. They went to a theater after dinner.

The next day and the next Winthrop called and took her out. Amalia was amazed at herself. She canceled dates right and left. She found herself looking forward to being with Winthrop. She wasn't used to this sort of thing. It was a week before she realized she was in love. It was a strange feeling, but wholly delightful.

THAT NIGHT Winthrop asked her to marry him. "Tomorrow vacation ends. I'm going back to college. I'm an English instructor there, you know. Pretty soon I expect I'll be an associate professor, then a full professor. Would you consider being the wife of a college professor, darling?"

A week ago Amalia wouldn't have considered being the wife of anything short of a millionaire. But that was before she'd met Winthrop. Instead of giving her usual callous reply to such a proposal she said: "I'd even consider being the wife of an English instructor, if he were you."

When Winthrop left her that night it was only after they'd sat before the house parked in his roadster for an hour. Presently she said: "I'm still in a dream. Why, that first night at the country club you didn't notice me at all. You didn't even see me."

He replied: "Literally I didn't. I'm near sighted. Can't see a thing without my glasses. The only one I could see plainly was Beulah Wyman. It seemed she was always in my way. Then after the first dance around in the Paul Jones I saw you and almost broke my neck trying to arrange it so we'd dance together."

"Thank heavens for Mr. Paul Jones," breathed Amalia.

BE SURE BEFORE OPENING YOUR LEFT HAND DOOR

"Don't open the left hand door of your car witrout first checking to see if anything is coming behind you," warned Lt. John deWinter, Director, Division of Traffic and Safety, Maine State Police.

"The practice of stepping out blindly on the traffic side of the car is extremely dangerous. It often catches a following motorist by surprise.

"Not only does one place his own life in danger by this maneuver," continued the Lieutenant, "He may easily cause an accident by forcing a driver to swerve into the wrong lane to avoid hitting him."

"Children riding in the back seat of a car should be taught to get out of the car on the curb side . . . never on the traffic side."

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE ABOUT YOUR NEW BLUE CROSS CONTRACT "E"

Beginning June 1 Blue Cross in Maine will increase its subscription rates for family membership about one penny a day. Higher hospital costs and increasing use of Blue Cross service by subscribers make this small increase necessary. The increase for an individual is about half a cent a day.

Coupled with the rate change are nine revisions in the present contract, to be included in your new Blue Cross Contract "E", also effective June 1.

A copy of the new Contract "E", together with a complete description of all changes in rates and provisions, has been mailed to 115,000 Blue Cross contract holders. If your copy has not reached you, write now to ASSOCIATED HOSPITAL SERVICE, 502 Forest Avenue, Portland 5, giving your contract number and correct address. Another copy will be mailed to you at once.

OUR DEMOCRACY —— by Mot

LIBERTY is WEALTH

THE IDEAS OF SUCH MEN AS ROGER BACON, PHILOSOPHER AND SCIENTIST OF THE 13th CENTURY, MET LITTLE ACCEPTANCE AND EVEN ACTIVE DISCOURAGEMENT IN THE TIMES AND ENVIRONMENT IN WHICH THEY LIVED. THEIR RECOGNITION HAD TO COME LATER.

IN OUR DEMOCRACY, THE MODERN ROGER BACONS ARE ENCOURAGED TO THINK, INVENT AND DISCOVER ACCORDING TO THEIR BENT — A FREEDOM THAT NOT ONLY ENRICHES THE SPIRIT, BUT THAT PAYS OFF IN SOCIAL BETTERMENT AND INDUSTRIAL POWER.

MORALLY AND MATERIALLY, THE LIBERTY OF THE INDIVIDUAL IS THE MIGHTIEST FORCE IN HUMAN PROGRESS.

BLACK CATS ARE LUCKY!

Nobody cares whether cats are black, brown, white or yellow. People treat them all the same.

Certain people won't be lucky as cats. Their color can get them into trouble.

Be you their ancestry Or their religion.

Cats don't discriminate because of such things. Many people do.

Seems that cats are smarter than many people, as well as luckier!

MRS. FRED M. WOOD

Mrs Olive Wheeler Wood died at her home on Park Street Saturday, April 26, after a long period of failing health. Her age was 81 years.

Mrs Wood was born in Bethel Oct. 5, 1870, the daughter of Clifford and Elmira (Cummings) Wheeler. She attended the school in her district, and early in life became proficient in the work of the farm home.

For several summers she was employed at the Valentine farm to which families from the city came on vacation. Later, Miss Wheeler found employment in Oxford, in the family of the owner of the Robinson woolen mill.

Following the death of Mr and Mrs Robinson she went to Boston, and was happily situated there until the sudden death of her mother called her back to the Wheeler farm. For a time she assumed family responsibilities trying to take her mother's place.

When circumstances allowed, she returned to Oxford, this time as managing housekeeper and hostess for Albert Robinson, son of her former employer. With a maid under her direction, she entertained often her employer's relatives and friends, being naturally hospitable and socially gracious.

Following Mr Robinson's death she returned to Bethel, rented the house on Park Street which has since been her home, purchasing the same in 1905. In the years since many changes and improvements have been made in the property.

It was easy to find roomers, and among the first boarders at her table was the late Dr Frank E Hanscom, principal of Gould Academy, who came to Bethel from Oxford. Students from the same town who transferred to Gould were occupants of her home before the dormitories were built. There were many others in later years including her three brothers, who left Park Street when they married and established homes of their own. Their father, too, made headquarters with her until his death in 1914.

In the meantime she had married Jan. 1, 1904, Fred M Wood of West Bethel, formerly of Winthrop. Mr Wood was a widower, and his two younger boys, Lester, 12, and Clement, 10, came to live with them.

Mr Wood was an active member of the Winthrop Methodist Church, and transferred his membership and loyal service to the Bethel church, of which his wife was a member since her girlhood. Together they attended and generously supported the local church. Mrs Wood was interested in the work of the former Epworth League, the Ladies' Aid and the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. She much enjoyed attending the Maine Annual Conference of Methodist Churches.

Mrs Wood will be remembered for these interests, for the good table she set before boarders and guests, for "birthday cakes," for laundry work and mending done, all of which helped to pay for the house and to acquire a small competence for age. She found time for gifts, too, and hospitality and the keeping of friends.

In recent years since the death of Mr Wood, she and her sister, Mrs Grover, lived together. The sister died in April, 1951.

Only two members of Mrs Wood's family survive her: the brothers, Wesley of Bethel and Lyman of Phillips. There are eight nieces and nephews, Mrs Marsters E York of Plainfield, Vt., Mrs Jesse Doyen of South Portland, Miss Hope S Wheeler, Roger W Wheeler, Chester C Wheeler, all of Bethel, Albert S Wheeler of Tacoma, Wash., Mrs John G Strughold of Burlingame, Calif., and Miss Mary E Wheeler, now a teacher in Amuay Venezuela, S. A. Of the step-children two survive: Ruth M, wife of Capt Ralph B Putnam, a dentist in the U. S. Navy; and Margaret A, wife of Harold P Smith of Monmouth. There are six step grandchildren, and 10 step great grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted April 28th at the Greenleaf Funeral Home, Bethel, by the Rev David Hickland. There was a profusion of beautiful flowers. Interment was at Woodland cemetery. D R W

"There are two ways of stimulating effort: The way through the possible rewards which the free enterprise system offers and the way of shooting those who do not do as directed. Shall we have the Yankee or the Russian way." Hartford (Conn.) Courant.

"It should be noted that inflation has occurred only in fields into which government has plunged its elephantine hand (food, housing, buildings materials, etc.). Items are being produced for sale at low prices in areas where producers are free to produce unhampered by government. Just what are the controllers producing besides chaos and confusion plus crushing taxation?" Springfield (Mass.) Union.

GOULD ACADEMY

Headmaster Elwood F Ireland has announced that dedication ceremonies for the two bronze plaques honoring Ellery C Park and Joseph R Barr, placed beside the Girls' Athletic Field and at the entrance to the Boys' Lower Athletic Field, will be held on Alumni Day, Saturday, June 7, at a time to be announced later.

Mr Park was a trustee of the school from 1926 to 1949, and served as treasurer from 1926 to 1949. For many years a much-respected citizen of Bethel, he is honored by the following inscription on the plaque, which is set into a granite boulder on a slope facing the field: "Close by the home he loved and the school which for nearly half a century he served, this athletic field is named in memory of Ellery C. Park, Lawyer-Banker." A record of his service to Gould Academy appears on the plaque.

Mr Barr's inscription is embedded in a granite boulder at the entrance to the pathway leading through a small pine grove to the Lower Athletic Field, the inscription reads: "Barr Field: Joseph R. Barr, Engineer, Builder, Artist. On the eternal foundation of spirit he built his own keen interest in youth into the material edifices of Gould Academy. Trustee 1925-1950 Treasurer 1942-1950."

An extensive and comprehensive show of pictures is being planned by the Gould Academy Camera Club to celebrate its tenth anniversary of its founding in the fall of 1942 by Gayle Foster. The salon prints and many montages which trace the history of the club's development as well as furnishing a record of almost every activity in the school will be selected by the faculty advisor and the club officers and displayed in Rooms 104 and 106 on the first floor of the main building, Hanscom Hall, from June 1 to June 8. A separate display will also be hung in the basement permanent display room in Holden Hall, where the 1952 prints will be shown.

The club has made a distinct and distinctive contribution to many phases of school life. A quick survey of its pictorial record will show many action pictures of Gould athletic heroes in action on gridiron diamond and track for the past decade. Formal dances, plays, dorm parties, candid shots of campus celebrities, buildings half buried in snow or outlined in spring blossoms all are pictured by the ever-present cameras of club members and the indefatigable Mr Foster. Most Sensational Values You've Ever Seen — Bar None!
Never before have nationally advertised power tools been offered at such tremendous savings. You owe it to yourself because our supplier must convert some of his war space to production. Prices have been slashed to move tools fast. In all our years of selling tools we have never before had such values to offer you. You have never seen anything that compares with them.

Sold Singly or in Combination
Whether you buy one, two, three or all five tools in addition to the savings you make right now, these tools will go on saving money for you year after year on home improvements and furniture you can build yourself.
They are quality made tools and are tremendous values, the 5 now weighs 50 lbs. That's cheaper than you could them apart!

Supply is Limited—Don't Delay
This is one of those "once in a blue moon" opportunities we're proud to pass up if you'll be needing power tools this year. Come in and see them at once. Judge their quality and value for yourself.

Your Satisfaction
IS OF FIRST IMPORTANCE in our printing department. Particular work and rush jobs are invited, because if we can't do it as you want it, promptly and economically, it is likely that we can arrange for early delivery from specializing printers. However, you will find that in most cases we can fulfill your requirements as desired—and without delay.
